

Speaker

Kriti Nagrath
Programme Manager
Development Alternatives

She has over 5 years of experience in the field of environmental management. During this period she has been actively involved in design, management and execution of projects. She also looks into research and documentation of the projects.

She is managing initiatives to ensure access to safe water for the bottom of the pyramid population in India. She is part of the team providing safe domestic water in urban and rural India in capturing and documenting good practices in water and sanitation management from across the semi arid spaces in the country. She has also contributed to policy discussions for improved water and sanitation governance.

She has been part of the monitoring and evaluation team of wetland conservation activities in Northeast India. She is also working with a team to develop community carbon clusters in semi arid regions of India for human and climate security. She is closely associated with the climate change team on implementing mitigation and adaptation measures on field.